Greek Cultural Profile

PLEASE NOTE: This profile provides an overview of some of the cultural information relating to the diverse groups of Greek-born people who live in the Eastern Region of Melbourne. This description may not apply to all people as individual experiences may vary. However this profile can be used as a guide to some of the issues that may concern your clients. This is an update of the profile in the Home and Personal Care Kit developed by the MIC in 2004.

Introduction:

- The Greek-born community in Melbourne is one of the largest outside Greece.
- At the 2006 Census, there were 54,325 Greek-born persons in Victoria, decreasing by 6.0% from 57,766 persons in 2001, due to ageing, some return migration, and lack of new arrivals (Victorian Multicultural Commission 2008).

Migration:

- The majority of Greek migration to Australia occurred in the 1950s, 1960s and early 1970s.
- Most Greeks left their homeland for economic reasons, some for political reasons and others for educational opportunities. Many of those migrating were unskilled and had no knowledge of the English language. Many older Greek-born people have established their own small businesses.
- The Greek community has a strong ability to maintain a bicultural identity after migration.
- Second generation Greeks have much higher levels of education.

(ABS Census 2006 & MAV Data 2006)

- Although there are some regional dialects, including Cypriot, Pontian and others, all Greeks speak or understand standard Greek.
- Greek children are encouraged to learn Greek as well as English. Most Greek Australian-born children are bilingual. The Greek community has the highest uptake of second and third generation language.
- 31.9% of the Greek-born population in Victoria identified as speaking English 'not-well' and 2.5% spoke English 'not at all' (Victorian Multicultural Commission 2008).
- 24.6% of the Greek-born population in Victoria assessed themselves as speaking English 'very well' and 32.7% as 'well' (Victorian Multicultural Commission 2008).

Religion:

- The majority of Greeks belong to the Greek Orthodox Christian Church. 90.3% of Greek-born people in Victoria identify as being Greek Orthodox (Victorian Multicultural Commission 2008). Most Greek celebrations and customs have their foundations in Greek Orthodoxy. Religion is a stronger influence with older Greeks than with the younger generation.
- Icons are significant religious symbols in Orthodoxy. Greek people pay honour to icons and usually have them in their homes. Icons and mirrors in the home are covered during the first few days of mourning as a sign of respect.
- Respecting the Greek belief system and spirituality is considered important in developing a good relationship.
- Following a death, a 'kandili' (religious burner comprising oil, water and a floating wick) must remain lit for 40 days next to an icon and a photo of the deceased, until the soul leaves this world.
- Fasting is an essential part of the Orthodox religion. Fasting from food means abstinence from meats, oil and dairy products. It is customary to fast 40 days prior to midnight on Easter Saturday. During Lent in the Easter period, Greeks spring-clean their homes and properties in preparation for the Holy Week.

Attitudes and Issues with Ageing:

- Traditionally the children and family members care for the elderly at home where possible. However it is no longer customary for Greek families in Australia to live together as an extended family unit. Many elderly people live alone.
- Residential care is taboo and seen as degrading to the care recipient.
- Greek elders have a high status in the family and community and are treated with respect. Younger people are expected to be submissive to older Greeks but also have positive attitudes to Older family members.
- Older people are honoured.
- Women usually take on the caring role of older Greek people. This can lead to isolation as they are willing to sacrifice their own needs to be a carer.
- Language and cultural differences may cause generational issues to arise between older Greeks and their Australian-born children and grandchildren.
- Grandparents often play an important role in caring for their grandchildren.

Attitudes to Disability and Mental Illness:

- The Greek-born community regards disability as shameful and a strong cultural stigma is attached to mental illness in particular.
- Older Greek people tend to suffer more from depression and anxiety when they have migrated. Greek women are more at risk than Greek men.
- Older Greeks may be reluctant to access mental health services as there is a general lack of understanding of mental health issues. 'Depression' is not understood to be a mental illness.
- Dementia is not easy to discuss as it is also seen as shameful.

Customs / Values:

- A patriarchal social structure is the norm where Greek fathers are the protector, provider and authority in the family.
- Greek mothers are expected to take care of their children and honour their husband.
- Family relationships are very important to the Greek-born population. The family has a strong role in decision-making regarding the care of elderly people. Family honour is an extremely important cultural value.
- Greeks are proud of their cultural heritage and traditions.
- Emphasis is on honour, morality, spirituality and fatalism.
- The wearing of black for those in mourning is still very prevalent, particularly by older women.
- Confidentiality is an important value.
- Personal relationships are important in terms of familiarity and trust of services and workers.

Communication Styles:

- Greek people generally have an expressive communication style and tend to express their emotions quite openly.
- Physical contact is both natural and normal but is generally restricted to the family / community.
- It is quite common for Greek people to greet each other with a hug and a kiss on both cheeks.

- It is important to maintain eye contact with someone who is older.
- Greek people are usually very sociable and generally prefer to be with others rather than be alone.

Naming Conventions:

- Older Greek people prefer to be addressed using their title. For example, Mr., Mrs. and Dr.
- In well-established or comfortable relationships, older Greek people may prefer to be addressed by their first name.
- Some Greeks will have anglicised versions of their Greek names.
- Older family friends are often addressed in conversation as 'Auntie' and 'Uncle' out of respect, even though they may not be directly related.

Health Beliefs and Practices:

- In cases of terminal illness, there is a tendency to avoid telling the ill person that they are dying.
- A small number of older Greek-born people may still practice cupping. This produces round bruises. It is important not to mistake the resulting marks as a sign of abuse.
- Many older Greek-born people use methylated spirits as a remedy by rubbing their arms and legs when they are tired or sore.
- Greek Australians tend to seek out doctors who understand their language and culture.
